

The General Postgraduate Program: Courses 2020/2

A 4-2 Presenting in English (2 CP)

Ellen Rana, University of Applied Sciences Koblenz

Course Description

Presenting in your own language is difficult enough, but in today's global environment more and more post-graduates are required to attend international events and/or present their research in English. This 2 day online-seminar will look at what makes an effective presentation, focussing on language skills, non-verbal communication and intercultural issues.

Target Audience, Number of Participants

Doctoral Candidates of JGU with a good command of English, allowing them to communicate fluently.
Maximum Number of Participants: 12 persons

Date, Time

Monday September 07th, 2020 10:00 a.m. – 6:00 p.m. and Thursday September 10th, 2020 9:00 a.m. – 2:00 p.m., online-platform Zoom

Topics

- Differences between oral and written communication in English
- Structuring and delivering oral presentations to meet the requirements of an international audience
- Simple rhetorical techniques
- Interacting with an audience: models of clarifying, responding to and dealing with questions
- Non-verbal communication - what your body language is really saying
- Small talk in English, especially for conferences or meetings

Learning Results

Participants...

- overcome their difficulties with English pronunciation through concentrating on common and individual pronunciation problems;
- are aware of the difference between spoken and written communication in English;
- are able to structure and deliver oral presentations in English and to deliver complicated subject matter clearly and effectively;
- feel confident to participate in seminars, workshops, international conferences and other kinds of academic discussions.

Preparation

Participants will be required to give a 5 minute presentation on their area of research which incorporates skills learnt during the seminar.
